

Going Deep - Pioneer Technical Services, Inc. Adds Professional Geologist to the Team. Charles Peterson, PG brings three decades of geological, environmental, mine reclamation, and water resource experience to the firm.

Billings, Montana, March 6, 2017. Building on its strong engineering teams across the northwest, Pioneer Technical Services, Inc., an award-winning engineering and environmental company, announced today that Charles L. Peterson, a Professional Geologist, has joined the firm as a Project Manager.

Mr. Peterson has more than 30 years of experience conducting and managing a wide range of geological, environmental, mine reclamation, and water resource projects. As a professional geologist and a licensed monitor well constructor in Montana, Charlie has managed and completed small and large (multi-million dollar) projects involving sampling inspections, environmental assessments, hazardous waste site remedial investigations and remedial actions, Brownfields assessments, and Leaking Underground Storage Tank assessments. He also has been an expert witness for a variety of projects and for the Montana Natural Resource Damage Program.

“Charlie's excellent reputation as an environmental professional and geoscientist is well earned. Pioneer's commitment to integrity, client service, and above all safety is what makes our organization special. And Charlie fits right in,” commented Brad Archibald, CEO, Pioneer. “We are excited and honored that he has chosen Pioneer to further his career.”

Charlie will work from our Billings, Montana, office and focus on expanding our geosciences services across the region.
